Volltext	As a late repatriate you are entitled to a recognition procedure for your educational qualifications. This involves checking whether your qualification is comparable with a German qualification. You can have both school and university qualifications and vocational qualifications recognised. You can have your vocational qualification compared with any profession that exists or no longer exists in Germany. As a rule, your professional experience is not taken into account.
Erforderliche Unterlagen	• Proof of recognition as a late repatriate (Spätaussiedler/Spätaussiedlerin) • Proof of your qualification (school, university or vocational qualification)

Kosten	Fees will be charged. However, these depend on the scope of your recognition procedure.
Verfahrensablauf	In order to have your degree obtained abroad verified, you must submit an application. This should be addressed to the competent authority. Which office is responsible for you depends on the following factors:

Sachverhalt

- Your foreign qualification,
- your place of residence or work,

The competent authority will compare your foreign qualification with the German reference qualification. If this comparison does not reveal any significant differences, you will be certified as having full equivalence.

If there is partial equivalence in the regulated professions, the competent body will inform you of concrete measures you can take to compensate for the differences found.

to compensate for the differences found.

"Regulated" means that you need recognition of your professional qualifications in order to practise the profession or use the professional title.

In those professions for which you do not necessarily need recognition (non-regulated), you will receive a notice detailing the differences you have found. This will enable you to apply directly to employers or to choose a further training course that suits you individually.

The recognition procedure ends with either a positive or a negative decision.

Partial recognition is not envisaged.
