Sachverhalt

Parts of your company that install, service or maintain stationary refrigeration systems within your company also require certification.

The reason for this is that the systems contain certain fluorinated greenhouse gases. Companies that operate such systems must prevent these climate-damaging gases from escaping, repair leaks as quickly as possible and regularly check the systems and applications for leaks.

You may only carry out these leak tests and maintenance and repair work if your company is certified. A certificate for the certification of the company will be issued to you upon application.

As a company, you must prove that you

- have sufficient qualified personnel. You must submit a certificate of competence in accordance with the Chemicals Climate Protection Ordinance.
- have the necessary technical equipment.

Erforderliche Unterlagen

- Application form
- for all specified competent persons:
 - proof of reliability by submitting a certificate of good conduct of document type "O"
 - Certificates of competence for the personnel covering the activities in question (copies)

Voraussetzungen

For the activities of installation, maintenance or servicing of systems

- you as a company must provide evidence of sufficient competent personnel.
- your personnel must have access to the tools and procedures required for the activities subject to certification.

For activities in connection with fire protection systems
