Teaser	In order to transport passengers against payment, a driver's license for passenger transport (FzF) is required.
Volltext	If you transport passengers in a motor vehicle and a licence is required for this transport in accordance with the Passenger Transport Act, you will need a driving licence for passenger transport (FzF) in addition to the general driving licence. The same applies if you transport passengers in an ambulance on a paid or business basis. A driving licence for passenger transport (FzF) is not required for 1. Ambulances of the Federal Armed Forces, the Federal Police, the Police as well as the troops and the civilian entourage of the other signatory states of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO), 2. ambulances of the civil protection, if they are used for its purpose, 3. ambulances of fire brigades and rescue services recognised under national law. If you hold a class D or D1 driving licence, you only need a FzF if you drive a taxi.
