Teaser	You can find out how the result of a European election is determined here.
Volltext	When the election is over, the election committee determines how many votes the respective list election proposal has received. Subsequently, the district election committee or the city election committee determine how many votes within the district or the independent city the respective list election proposals have received. These election committees can also verify the findings of the election committees. As the next instance, the Land election committee determines the votes for the election proposals on a Land basis. It may correct the results of the election committees and the district and municipal election committees. Finally, the Federal Election Committee determines the votes cast at the federal level. In addition, it determines the number of seats for the list election proposals and determines the elected candidates. The Federal Electoral Committee may make arithmetical corrections to the results of the Land Electoral Committee.

Verfahrensablauf

The result of the European election is determined as follows:

- The election committee in the electoral district establishes the result in the electoral district, prepares a record and hands it over to the municipal authority.
- The local authority of a municipality belonging to a district prepares a compilation of the results of the electoral districts in the municipality area and hands it over to the district electoral officer.
- The district and municipal election committees establish the result in their area of responsibility (district or city without a district) and forward it to the Land election officer.
- The Land electoral committee establishes the result in the Land and transmits it to the Federal electoral officer.
- The Federal Election Committee determines the result
