Teaser	If your gender identity differs from your officially registered gender entry, you can have your gender and first name details changed. To do this, you must submit a declaration to the registry office.
Volltext	With a declaration, you specify the details of your gender and your first names that best correspond to your gender identity. The self-declaration is sufficient. You do not have to give reasons for the change. Gender details You can choose between the following gender details: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Gender entry "female" • Gender entry "male" • Gender entry "diverse" You also have the option of deleting the gender entry and not having a gender entry. In your declaration, you must confirm that <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • the chosen gender entry or the deletion of the gender entry best corresponds to your gender identity and • you are aware of the consequences of the declaration.

ModulSachverhaltDetails of the first name*

In your declaration, you specify one or more first names that correspond to your chosen gender entry. For the gender entry "male", you can choose male first names or first names that can be assigned to both genders. For gender entry "female", you can select female first names or first names that can be assigned to both genders. If you do not choose a gender entry or select the gender entry "diverse", you are free to choose your first name.

You can continue to use your previous first names if they correspond to the chosen gender entry. You can choose not to keep your existing first names or add further first names.

Registration and submission of the declaration

You must notify a German registry office informally orally or in writing at least 3 months before submitting the declaration; in some cases this is also possible online. The registration is only valid for 6 months. You must make the declaration verbally for the record at the same registry office where you made the registration. You can only make your declaration yourself. Representation is not possible.

The registry office keeping the civil status register is generally responsible for the subsequent entry in the register.

If your birth was not recorded in a German birth register, the following order of responsibility applies:

- Registry office where the marriage register or civil partnership register is kept
- Registry office at your current or last German place of residence or habitual abode
- Registry office I in Berlin

If there is no entry in the register, the change becomes effective upon receipt of the declaration by the registry office responsible for accepting it. If you register and submit the declaration at another registry office in Germany, your declaration will be forwarded to the registry office responsible. If you usually reside abroad and have German citizenship, you can register at a German registry office and have your declaration notarized by a German diplomatic mission abroad.

The following applies to minors with limited legal capacity from the age of 14:

- If you are at least 14 years old, you can make your declaration yourself at the registry office.
- Your legal representatives, i.e. your custodial parents or a guardian, agree to the declaration in person at the registry office. The consent can also be replaced by a family court.
- In your declaration, you also confirm that you have been advised, i.e. that you are fully informed. You do not have to provide proof of this. Counseling is voluntary. Counseling is offered, for example, by
 - Persons with a professional qualification in psychology, child and adolescent psychotherapy or child and adolescent psychiatry
 - public or independent child and youth welfare organizations
 - peer counseling centers

The following applies to minors under the age of 14 with limited legal capacity or minors who are legally incompetent:

- Only the legal representatives, i.e. the custodial parents or a guardian, can make the declaration at the registry office.
- A family court must approve the submission of the declaration by a guardian.
- Minors aged 5 and over must give their consent to the declaration.
- The legal representatives also declare that they have received advice, i.e. that they are fully informed. They do not have to provide proof of consultation.

Modul

Sachverhalt

The following applies to legally incompetent adults:

- Only a person appointed as a legal guardian for this matter can make the declaration on your behalf.
- The declaration by the guardian must be approved by a guardianship court.

The following applies to adults with legal capacity for whom legal guardianship exists:

You make the declaration yourself, unless there is a reservation of consent ordered for this matter.

register.

- If there is no German birth, marriage or civil partnership register entry, the declaration is entered in a register.

- The change to the gender entry and first names becomes effective upon entry in the register. If there is no entry in the register, the change becomes effective upon receipt of the declaration by the registry office responsible for receiving it.

- You can agree with the registry office that you will be notified as soon as your chosen gender and first name details have been entered.

Bearbeitungsdauer

Frist

You must submit the declaration 3 months after and up to 6 months from the date of registration. If you do not submit a declaration, the registration will expire. A new declaration regarding the change of gender entry and first names is generally possible at the earliest 12 months after the last declaration.

Hinweise

- Once the change has been entered in the registers, the passport or ID card becomes invalid. As part of the general obligation to hold a valid identity card, you must therefore apply for a new identity card or passport.

- A change of first name without changing the gender entry is not possible under this procedure.

- The change of gender entry and first name only takes effect in German law. The following are possible:

- Entries in the register of births
- entries in the marriage register or civil partnership register

- or inclusion of the declaration received in an official register

- Documents or register entries issued by foreign authorities can only be changed by the issuing state itself. The effect of the declaration made in Germany on documents and register entries in your home country is generally determined by the regulations of your home country.

- It is advisable to seek advice on the effects in your country of origin and other cross-border matters.
- If necessary, you can involve an interpreter in the proceedings at your own expense.
- If you usually reside abroad and have German citizenship, proceed as follows:
 - You can register the submission of a declaration informally in writing or partially online at a German registry office, preferably at the registry office keeping the register or the competent registry office.
 - You will receive a confirmation of registration in writing or by e-mail.
 - You can have your declaration notarized at a German embassy or consulate. The embassy or consulate will send the declaration to the registry office responsible for entering the change in the register or issuing the certificate of submission of the declaration.

Rechtsbehelf

- If you would like to take action against a negative decision by the registry office, you have the option of filing an application with the local court with the aim of instructing the registry office.
- If your application is rejected by the local court, you can then lodge an appeal with a higher regional court and, if necessary, a legal complaint with the Federal Court of Justice after the higher regional court has granted leave to appeal.
