Teaser	Have you paid for the repatriation of a person who died as a result of an accident at work, a commuting accident or an occupational disease? Then you can get the costs back under certain conditions.
Volltext	The Agricultural Workers' Compensation Board may reimburse you for the cost of a transfer. This applies to • surviving dependents as well as • other persons who have paid for the repatriation. You do not have to apply for reimbursement. The Agricultural Employer's Liability Insurance Association will check your entitlement to reimbursement on its own initiative.
Erforderliche Unterlagen	• Proof of payment and amount of transfer costs, for example, an invoice
Voraussetzungen	If you pay for a repatriation, you will be reimbursed by the Agricultural Accident Insurance Fund if: • the deceased person was insured with the Agricultural Accident Insurance Fund • reimbursable repatriation costs were actually incurred by the Agricultural Accident Insurance Fund • the death was the consequence of an insured event. These include: occupational accidents, commuting accidents, occupational diseases • the person did not die at the place of his/her permanent family residence • the deceased was staying there for reasons related to the insured activity or to the consequences of the
