Teaser	If you are a foreign national and discover shortly before you intend to leave Germany that your passport or passport replacement has expired, you can apply for an emergency travel document under certain conditions.
Volltext	In acute emergencies, you can apply for an emergency travel document at the border so that you can leave and, if necessary, re-enter Germany. Acute emergencies exist if undue or unreasonable hardship is to be avoided or if there is a particular public interest. You can only enter another country with the emergency travel document if that country recognizes the document. There is no obligation for other countries to recognize it. Airlines are also not obliged to take you on board with an emergency travel document. The emergency travel document can be applied for by: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Nationals of a member state of the European Union, the Agreement on the European Economic Area or Switzerland and their family members entitled to freedom of movement,

- nationals of a country listed in Annex II to the EU Visa Regulation,
- third-country nationals who are entitled to return to the above-mentioned countries, i.e. holders of a residence permit (category C Schengen visas are excluded) or a long-stay visa for residence in Germany,
- civilian ship personnel of a ship operating on the sea or coastal waterways or on the Rhine for shore leave or
- civilian flight personnel for a stay on the airport premises, in the airport community or for a transfer to another airport in order to take off from there.

There is no legal entitlement to the issue of an emergency travel document. Whether the emergency document is issued to you is at the discretion of the competent border authority. The authority may refuse to issue it, for example, if you wish to travel to a country that is known not to recognize the emergency travel document or if you can apply for a passport or passport replacement from your consulate or the immigration authority.

If you are a minor, your legal guardian or an authorized person can apply for an emergency travel document.

The emergency travel document is issued by a border authority, for example the Federal Police at the airport. Border authorities are the Federal Police and other state and federal authorities responsible for policing cross-border traffic.

The emergency travel document is only valid for the duration of the respective journey, but for a maximum of one month. It is not a full replacement for a passport.

Erforderliche Unterlagen

- Proof of your identity and that of your nationality, for example by: expired passport or expired temporary passport expired identity card from another EU, EEA or Swiss member state For minors: expired children's passport or birth certificate
- Proof of entitlement to long-term residence, for example through German residence permit in check card format or Residence permit of another Schengen state in check card format
