Teaser	If you wish to import narcotics into Germany, you must apply for an import permit from the Federal Institute for Drugs and Medical Devices (BfArM). Under certain circumstances, you can also apply for a clearance certificate instead.
Volltext	To be able to apply for an import permit, you need a permit to handle narcotics (BtM permit). The permit is valid for a maximum of 3 months, for imports by sea for a maximum of 6 months. After you have imported the narcotics, you must immediately inform the Federal Institute for Drugs and Medical Devices (BfArM) of the process in an import notification. If you do not import the narcotics within the period specified in the import permit, you must also report this in an import notification immediately after the period has expired. If the substance or preparation in question is not subject to narcotics legislation in Germany, you may require a clearance certificate as a substitute for the import permit. This clearance certificate officially certifies that a substance or preparation is not subject to narcotics legislation in Germany. The application procedure for clearance certificates is primarily aimed at trading companies, in particular from the pharmaceutical sector, which trade in medicinal products or active substances across borders on the basis of pharmaceutical legislation. You can also use the application procedure if you: • are a scientific institution or • are a company that supplies scientific institutions with reference solutions.

Modul

Sachverhalt

The clearance certificate is intended exclusively for submission to the foreign authority responsible for narcotics traffic. It serves as a substitute for an import permit in accordance with the Narcotics Act (BtMG) and the Narcotics Foreign Trade Ordinance (BtMAHV). This certificate is required to obtain a corresponding export license from the authority responsible for narcotics traffic abroad.

The Federal Opium Agency at the Federal Institute for Drugs and Medical Devices (BfArM) is responsible for the import license and the clearance certificate.
