Teaser	If you would like to carry out an educational science or similar research project in a Hessian school, also as part of a qualification thesis, you must first obtain approval from the Hessian Ministry of Education.
Volltext	The implementation of a scientific study in Hessian schools requires prior approval from the Hessian Ministry of Education. This regulation applies to scientific research projects regardless of the discipline and the methods and instruments used. Surveys by means of questionnaires, competence tests, qualitative interviews, classroom observations and the like are thus included. Although approval by the Ministry of Education and Cultural Affairs is a prerequisite for implementation, it does not replace the consent of the individual school to the implementation there. Before the school management agrees to participate, the school conference must always be consulted on the research project. The hearing of the school conference can take place independently of the application procedure according to § 84 Hessian School Act. The approval procedure pays particular attention to compliance with data protection regulations, as personal or personal data is usually collected during surveys and similar data collection in schools. In addition, it is also examined whether survey methods and contents concern sensitive issues and have the risk of impairment of the peace at school or the educational mission of the schools.
