Teaser	Does your child have problems in everyday life or in his development? As a parent, do you need support with your upbringing? Then raising your child in a day group can be a possible help.
Volltext	Education in a day group is particularly suitable for children from school age who show behavioral problems or developmental delays. This is a type of educational aid to which legal guardians are entitled if an education in the best interests of the child is not guaranteed and the assistance is suitable and necessary for his or her development. It may also be suitable for young adults according to § 41 SGB VIII. A day group is a so-called semi-stationary help. Your child will be cared for during the week during the day after school attendance in a day group. After that, however, it can remain in the family and thus in the familiar environment. Education in a day group means: • Your child receives therapeutic and educational care• Receives support for integration into the school and the social environment• It learns to deal with other children and conflicts in a group• It learns to shape its everyday life and receives suggestions for meaningful leisure activities. • Parents are intensively involved, for example through counselling sessions, parents' evenings or parent-child meetings. The aims of education in a day group are: • the strengthening of the child• the strengthening of his parents• strengthening the parent-child relationship• the child's remaining in the family
