Teaser	Anyone who wants to handle or trade explosive substances needs a permit. A permit can only be issued if the reliability has been checked beforehand.
Volltext	You need a permit in accordance with § 7 of the Explosives Act (SprengG) in order to handle explosive substances commercially or independently within the framework of an economic enterprise or an agricultural or forestry operation or to operate the traffic there. Handling includes the manufacture, processing, processing, recovery, storage, transfer, use and destruction of explosive substances. The transport, the transfer and the receipt within the business premises is also included in the handling. Traffic includes the making available on the market, the acquisition, the transfer and the brokering of the acquisition, distribution and transfer of explosive substances. Permission shall be granted upon application by the competent authority. The issuance of the permit is subject to a fee. When checking the reliability, information is requested from the following offices: Federal Central Register, Central Trade Register, Public Prosecutor's Office Register of Proceedings, State Criminal Police Office, Office for the Protection of the Constitution and, if
