| Teaser                           | The land register provides information about the legal circumstances of a property. You can inspect the land register under certain conditions.  |
| Volltext                         | For example, the land register provides you with information on• who is the owner of a piece of land,  |
|                                  | <ul> <li>whether third parties have rights to a property and, ifso, what these rights are, for example, encumbrancesor easements, or</li> <li>whether there are priority notices or certainrestrictions on disposal. A priority notice secures aclaim to transfer of ownership under a purchaseagreement or other arrangement.</li> </ul>   |
|                                  | For example, prior to the purchase of a plot of land,any rights of third parties to the seller's property canbe determined by inspecting the land register in orderto avoid taking over a plot of land with value-reducingencumbrances of which the buyer is unaware, forexample a lifelong residential right of a third party.However, since most land transfers requirenotarization, the land register inspection is usuallyperformed by the notary who is entrusted with theland transaction and informs the parties to thecontract in this regard. |
|                                  | If you wish to inspect the land register only once oroccasionally, you can apply for inspection at the landregistry office. You can  |
|                                  | <ul> <li>inspect the land register free of charge on site at theland registry office or the land registry inspection officeof a municipality,</li> <li>have an extract from the land register sent to you for</li> </ul>   |

|                          | a fee• inspect the land register at a notary public for a fee.   |
|                          | In principle, citizens do not have direct online access tothe land register. Authorities, notaries, courts andpublicly appointed surveyors can, under certainconditions, obtain unrestricted online access to theland register (unrestricted retrieval procedure).   |
|                          | Persons or bodies for whom a large number of landregister inspections or special urgency is to beexpected can be admitted to the restricted retrievalprocedure, for which a justified interest must beassured for each online retrieval. Such persons orentities may be, for example:  |
|                          | <ul> <li>Lawyers who carry out compulsory enforcementproceedings</li> <li>Insurance companies</li> <li>banks or</li> <li>Utility companies</li> </ul>   |
| Erforderliche Unterlagen | <ul> <li>Passport or identity card</li> <li>if the property is not yours: documents showing yourlegitimate interest (e.g. declaration of consent by theowner)</li> </ul>   |
| Voraussetzungen          | General admission requirements:  |
|                          | <ul> <li>You must have a legitimate interest to inspect the land register.</li> <li>The justified interest to inspect the land register must be presented to the land registry office. In individual cases, the land registry may require a prima facie case or proof of the interest.</li> <li>The owner of the property and all holders of rights entered in the land register, for example creditors of a land charge, have a legitimate interest. In addition, an economic or public interest may also be sufficient, for example, land adjusters who want to obtain information about the neighboring owner, a tenant to determine whether the landlord is the owner or an heir.</li> </ul> |
