Volltext	If you join or re-join a tax-collecting religious community, you must pay church tax in accordance with the church tax laws of the federal states, as a surcharge on your income or wage tax (wage church tax). The employer must therefore withhold not only income tax but also church tax from the employee's wages and pay it to the tax office each time wages are paid. The corresponding procedure for deducting church tax is largely automated. You therefore generally do not have to do anything else to meet your church tax obligations once you have declared your membership. The religious communities themselves regulate how and with which authority membership of the church is to be declared. Church affiliation is recorded by the registration authorities of the federal states and can only be changed by them. The tax authorities have no influence on this. This is important, for example, if the authorities have incorrect data. The registration authorities inform the Federal Central Tax Office (BZSt) of changes to church affiliation and the

The BZSt makes the ELStAM available to the employer for automated retrieval free of charge. The ELStAM are decisive for the withholding of church tax in the tax deduction procedure by the employer, i.e. the employer is bound by them and does not need to check the question of church tax liability.
