Teaser	You can use this application to apply for recognition of your foundation.
Volltext	You can have a foundation with legal capacity recognized.
	In principle, the name of the foundation can be freely chosen. For example, the name of the founder, the association, the company or even part of the purpose of the foundation can appear in the name.
	The purpose of the foundation determines the actual nature of the foundation. It should be chosen carefully, as it cannot be changed after recognition without good reason.
	A foundation is a legal entity without members that uses assets to pursue a purpose defined by the founder. The income from the foundation's assets must be sufficient to permanently and sustainably promote the defined purposes. The purposes of foundations are diverse. They can be charitable or non-charitable. Topics can include, for example, art and culture, science and research or education and upbringing.
	You can set up foundations either as expendable or perpetual foundations. While the former are set up for a specific period of time and the foundation's assets are to be used up for this purpose, perpetual foundations are set up for an unlimited period of time and their assets are to be preserved for the permanent fulfillment of the foundation's purpose.
	Both natural and legal persons are entitled to apply for recognition of a foundation. This means that private individuals, companies or associations can pursue a specific purpose through a foundation.
