Teaser	You come from abroad and would like to work as a tax consultant in Germany? Then you must apply for admission to the qualifying examination.

of origin for taking up and practicing the profession of tax advisor, but you have acquired rights in the past and are thus grandfathered.

Notice:

If the profession of tax advisor is not regulated in the country of origin, i.e. if the taking up and exercise of the professional activity is not bound by legal and administrative regulations to the possession of certain professional qualifications, the admission to the aptitude test additionally requires that the profession of tax advisor has been exercised for 1 year in the previous 10 years in the country of origin to an extent of at least 16 hours per week.

In this case, the competent authority of the country of origin must additionally certify that the applicant has been prepared to practice the profession.

However, the obligation to provide evidence of this one year of professional experience does not apply if the evidence of training confirms the completion of regulated training.
