Teaser	If you wish to hold a major event with an increased risk potential, you must apply for a permit.
Volltext	In the Free and Hanseatic City of Hamburg, major public events in the open air with over 10,000 participants and an increased risk potential must be approved. Such an increased risk potential can result from the type of event, such as motor sport events or if pyrotechnic objects are used. The location and nature of the event venue are also relevant for such an assessment, such as on or near water or where escape routes are difficult. A large number of people in a confined space or events with an increased potential for conflict are also considered to have an increased risk potential. If you are planning an event with a possible increased risk potential, please submit an informal, written application for a permit. After your documents have been checked, you will receive written notification of the approval of your application.
