Teaser	Do you commercially control vertebrates as pests? Then you need a permit from the competent authority under animal protection law.
Volltext	If you want to control vertebrates as pests on a commercial basis, you need a permit under animal protection law from the competent authority before you start your activity. In order to obtain a permit, you may also need to enclose with your application certificates of competence from the persons who regularly anesthetize or kill vertebrates for the purpose of killing on a professional or commercial basis. You may start the activity as soon as you have been granted the permit.
