passed master craftsman's examination or at least an equivalent professional qualification, which can be obtained in Germany or abroad. Therefore, an entry in the register of craftsmen is also possible on the basis of a university degree successfully completed in the EU, the EEA or Switzerland (e.g. engineering studies) with a standard period of study of at least three years full-time, provided that the focus of study corresponds to that of the craft to be practiced. If vocational training is required in addition to studying in the country of origin, proof must be provided that this has been completed. Proof of qualification must be provided by the owner of the business or an employed plant manager who is responsible for the technical management.
