Verfahrensablauf

- Find out whether your Foreigners' Registration Office allows you to apply online or has a special application form.

- During the appointment, your identity and documents will be checked (please bring your documents, if possible in the original, with you to the appointment).
- If your application is granted, the training toleration may be handed over to you at the appointment. If your application is rejected, you will receive a rejection notice. In this case, the training may not be started.

Bearbeitungsdauer

Registration Office, it is in principle possible to hand it over during the interview.

Frist

Rejected asylum seekers should submit the application for the granting of the training toleration as soon as possible after receipt of the rejection notice. The application should be received by the Foreigners' Registration Office in good time before the start of the training, but at the earliest seven months before the start of the vocational training. Hinweise

- During the asylum procedure, no training toleration can be granted. During this time, it is sufficient to have a residence permit, which can also be used to start school or company training.
- The training toleration is not a prerequisite for the start of an apprenticeship. This can already be taken up if the gainful employment has been permitted - i.e. an employment permit has been issued. However, a "normal" toleration provided with an employment permit does not provide long-term protection against termination of residence during the period of training, nor does it have the special rights associated with the training toleration.

Modul

- After successful completion of vocational training, a residence permit for a further two years may be considered ("3+2" rule). If the training company does not take them on, a temporary suspension of deportation for work is initially granted for six months.
- If the apprenticeship is terminated prematurely or terminated, the training toleration expires. For the search for a new training place, a one-time toleration for six months can be granted. Training companies and educational institutions are obliged to inform the Foreigners' Registration Office within two weeks of the discontinuation of the training.
- With the training toleration, no travel abroad is possible.
- The training toleration expires in the event of a conviction, expulsion and the issuance of a deportation order to avert a special, in particular a terrorist threat.
- The procedure is usually carried out in German. If you have insufficient knowledge of German, it is advisable to speak with a person who can act as a translator.
- All information provided to the Foreigners' Registration Office should be correct and complete to the best of our knowledge and belief so that the request can be processed without major delays.
- Incorrect or incomplete information can slow down the procedure and be detrimental to the persons concerned. In the event of an emergency, incorrect or incomplete information that is not completed or corrected in time vis-à-vis the Foreigners' Registration Office may result in the revocation of residence rights already granted, a fine, imprisonment of up to three years or expulsion from the federal territory.
- Due to the complexity of the right of residence, this description is for information purposes only and is not legally binding.

Rechtsbehelf

- Objection to the decision of the Foreigners' Registration Office within one month of notification
- Bringing an action before the court named in the notice of opposition if the objection is not upheld application has been rejected, vocational training has been started during the asylum procedure and the training is to be completed, or persons obliged to leave the country would like to start an apprenticeship with a toleration.

- The training toleration is granted for qualified, at least two-year, in-company or school-based vocational training in a state-recognised or comparably regulated training occupation, state-recognized or comparably regulated assistant or helper training, which is followed by qualified vocational training.
- For assistant or helper training, a training place confirmation is required for the subsequent vocational training. In addition, it must be a "shortage occupation" (e.g. care for the elderly and the sick).
- In cases where vocational training is to be taken up in the status of toleration, the training toleration is granted at the earliest six months before the start of vocational training. The application can be submitted at the earliest seven months before the start of vocational training.
- As a rule, the training toleration is granted for the entire duration of the training (and the deportation is suspended for this time).
- The training toleration is granted for a specific training company. A (seamless) change of the training company is possible if the "transfer" of the training toleration is applied for before the change of company.
- In the event of a premature end of the training, the training toleration expires. For a period of six months, a one-time toleration can be granted to search for a new training place.
- After successful completion of vocational training, a residence permit for a further two years may be considered ("3+2" rule). If the training company does not take them on, a temporary suspension of deportation for work is initially granted for six months.
- With the training toleration, no travel abroad is possible.
- The granting of the training toleration is generally subject to a fee. A fee exemption may be considered for the purchase of public services.
- In the case of persons who have not yet reached the age of 18, the consent of the legal guardians is required.
