Teaser	Do you have sole custody of your child and need a certificate (negative certificate)? Find out more here.
Volltext	If you as the mother are not married to the father of the child and no entries have been made in the custody register, you can request a certificate of sole custody (negative certificate) from the responsible youth welfare office. A custody register is kept there for children of unmarried parents. Entries are made in this custody register if: • declarations of custody are made. • Custody has been awarded jointly in whole or in part on the basis of a final court decision. • Custody has been wholly or partly withdrawn from the mother or transferred to the father on the basis of a final court decision. If no entry has been made in the custody register, you will be issued with a written certificate of sole custody. If, on the basis of a court decision, entries have been made in the custody register that relate to the distribution of parental custody, you will receive written information that entries have been made in the custody register.
