Teaser	Would you like to work in Germany as a person responsible for breeding work? To do so, you must have your foreign professional qualification recognized as equivalent to a corresponding German qualification.
Volltext	Working as a person responsible for breeding work is regulated in Germany. This means that in order to work as a person responsible for breeding work in Germany, you must provide proof of a certain qualification. Even if you have a professional qualification from abroad, you can work in Germany as a person responsible for breeding work under certain conditions. To do this, you must have your foreign professional qualification recognized. The procedure for recognition is called: equivalence assessment. During the equivalence assessment, the competent authority compares your professional qualification with a corresponding German

Modul

Sachverhalt

You submit an application for equivalence assessment to the competent body. You can submit the application with the documents to the competent body, send it by post or upload it electronically. The competent body will inform you.

Examination of equivalence

The competent body will then check: Is your professional qualification equivalent to a corresponding German qualification? The competent authority will compare your professional qualification with the German professional qualification. The professional qualification is equivalent if there are no significant differences between your foreign professional qualification and the German professional qualification.

Possible results of the examination

If your professional qualification is equivalent, your foreign professional qualification will be recognized. The competent authority can confirm the result in writing. You must still meet the other requirements. You may then work as a person responsible for breeding work in Germany.

Are there any significant differences between your professional qualification and the German professional qualification? You may be able to compensate for the differences through your professional experience, other knowledge or skills (lifelong learning). You must provide evidence of your professional experience. Knowledge and skills must be certified by an authority in the country in which you acquired the knowledge or skills.

However, it may be that the significant differences cannot be compensated for by this knowledge. In this case, your foreign professional qualification will not be recognized. You will then not be allowed to work as a person responsible for breeding work. However, the competent authority will tell you the main differences and why you cannot compensate for the main differences with your professional experience.

Sachverhalt

In most cases, you can take a compensatory measure. This will allow you to compensate for the main differences.

Compensatory measures

There are various compensatory measures:

- Adaptation course: The adaptation course lasts a maximum of three years.
- Aptitude test: The aptitude test examines the areas in which significant differences have been identified.

You can usually choose between an adaptation period or an aptitude test. In some cases, the competent body will decide which compensatory measure you need to take. The competent body will advise you on this.

If you successfully complete the compensation measure and meet all other requirements, you will be allowed to work as a person responsible for breeding work in Germany.

Bearbeitungsdauer

3 Monat(e)

The responsible office will inform you if any documents are missing. The procedure starts when the documents are complete. The procedure takes a maximum of 3 months.

Frist

There is no deadline.
