Volltext	The use of new or renewed measuring devices must be reported to the competent authority. This applies, for example, if you are using a new measuring device for business or official purposes. You are using a new or renewed measuring device that falls under the MessEG or the MessEV. The scope of the MessEG includes, for example • Measuring instruments for determining length or combinations of lengths for determining length or area • Measuring instruments for the determination of mass • Measuring instruments for the determination of temperature • Measuring instruments for the determination of pressure • Measuring instruments for the determination of measured quantities in the supply of electricity • Measuring instruments for determining the amount of heat (heat and cold in circulation systems) The obligation to notify does not apply to measuring instruments such as weights or dispensing measures and not to additional equipment. A measuring instrument is deemed to have been renewed if it has already been put into operation and
