Applying for an introductory allowance in accordance with § 16b of the Second Book of the Social Code/SGB II

Volltext

Applying for an introductory allowance in accordance with § 16b of the Second Book of the Social Code/SGB II

The aim is to overcome and not reduce the need for assistance for recipients of citizen's allowance who take up self-employment or dependent employment of at least 15 hours per week and thereby end their unemployment

The introductory allowance can be granted for a maximum of 24 months after starting a business or taking up gainful employment.

The following measures are subsidised:

- Start-up (alone or in a team)
- Takeover of a business
- re-starting a business ("second chance")
- employment subject to social security contributions as an employee*

The start-up allowance can also be paid if the need for assistance ceases due to or after taking up gainful employment.

Conditions

Type of funding Non-repayable grant (fixed amount funding)

Amount usually 50 per cent of the standard benefit of the citizen's allowance

The amount of the introductory allowance depends on the applicant's previous period of unemployment and the number of dependants. It is determined individually by the respective integration specialist / case manager at the responsible office.

Modul

Sachverhalt

Duration of receipt

- maximum of 24 months, whereby the allowance may be paid in shorter authorisation periods (usually six months)
- only for the duration of employment / self-employment

If the subsidy is to last longer than six months, the subsidy is generally reduced (subsidy degression).

Payment monthly, at the end of each month

Note: A combination with other funding programmes (e.g. loans) is possible. You cannot be granted a legal entitlement to this subsidy.
