Sachverhalt

If you provided information on this when registering, it is even possible to find out where the original document is via the register.

In the Central Precautionary Register, certain data on the precautionary power of attorney or the care directive are recorded electronically. You can enter the following data in the register:

- Data of the grantor of power of attorney: (surname, maiden and first names; sex; date and place of birth; address, etc.)
- Data of the authorised representative: (family, birth and first names; date of birth; address; telephone number etc.)
- Date on which the document was drawn up
- Place where the document is kept
- Information on the purpose for which the power of attorney was granted or the care directive was drawn up (e.g. matters of property, health care or other personal matters)
- Information on special instructions and wishes

Attention! The Central Precautionary Register does not hold the original document with the declaration of the health care proxy / care directive. It also does not contain a copy of the document or information about its contents. Since only the original document is valid, please keep it in a safe place.

Revocation or deletion from the ZVR

A change of contact data, a revocation or a deletion may be possible for a fee. It is advisable to register a revocation as opposed to a deletion, as this will alert querying guardianship/caretaker courts to the revocation and prompt them to make further enquiries if a continuing power of attorney is claimed.

Note: In order to revoke your health care proxy, you must notify your authorised representative and request the return of any proxy document that may have been issued. Notification of a revocation to the Central Register of Provisions is not necessary or
