If you want to run a zoo, you need the permission of the nature conservation authority. In addition to the construction and operation of a zoo, expansion and major changes also require approval. The nature conservation authority grants the permit upon application for certain facilities and certain operators and sets a maximum number of animals of each species.

Volltext

Permission to establish, expand, operate and substantially modify a zoo in accordance with § 42 of the Federal Nature Conservation Act (BNatSchG)

If you want to run a zoo, you need the permission of the nature conservation authority. In addition to the construction and operation of a zoo, expansion and major changes also require approval. The nature conservation authority grants the permit upon application for certain facilities and certain operators and sets a maximum number of animals of each species.

According to the Federal Nature Conservation Act (BNatSchG), zoos are permanent facilities where animals of wild species are kept for at least seven days a year in order to display them.
