Teaser	Are you looking for information on air quality in Saxony? Do you want to know what measurements are currently being taken or what data is available from previous years? You can find information on the Free State's website.
Volltext	Public access to air quality information in accordance with Section 3 of the Umweltinformationsgesetz (UIG) Are you looking for information on air quality in Saxony? Do you want to know what measurements are currently being taken or what data is available from previous years? You can find information on the Free State's website. The Free State of Saxony operates a state-wide monitoring network to monitor air quality. The measuring stations provide results on particulate matter, sulphur dioxide, ozone, benzene, toluene and xylenes, among other things. In addition to current data on air pollutants, you can also find the results of long-term studies for individual regions in Saxony on the Internet, for example for urban centres.
