resolution and updated annually. The experiences of parents and pupils must be taken into account.

The school route plan is to be explained to pupils and parents at the beginning of the school year and also made the subject of parents' meetings. Pupils in the first classes must be appropriately familiarized with the safe route to school and the danger points.

The state specialist advisor for road safety education supports the supreme school supervisory authority in all matters relating to road safety education in schools (including road safety) and coordinates the work of the district specialist advisors for road safety education. In the districts and independent cities, the school authorities each appoint a district subject advisor. The representatives appointed by the school principals are responsible for coordinating road safety education at the respective school and advise the school principals, conferences, teachers and parents on all matters relating to road safety education.
