Volltext	Animal enclosures are fixed installations outside residential and commercial buildings in which animals of wild species are kept in captivity. The construction, substantial modification and operation of animal enclosures require a permit. This is issued for certain facilities and certain operators and specifies a maximum number of animals for each individual species. Animal enclosures do not require a permit, • which are under state supervision, • which are only set up for a short period of time or occupy an area of no more than 50 m², • in which only a small number of animals or animals with low husbandry requirements are kept or in which no more than two birds of prey of the species goshawk, golden eagle and peregrine falcon are kept and the keeper holds a valid falconry license.
