Modul

Sachverhalt

The subsidised rented housing is committed for a certain period of time exclusively or primarily for the benefit of households entitled to housing (special occupancy commitment).

Note: Households entitled to housing are households with low income AND additional difficulties in accessing the housing market due to certain characteristics.

Which groups of people fulfil these characteristics is decided by the highest Land authority in consultation with the L-Bank. The subsidised housing must be let to the tenant during the commitment period for a reduced basic rent compared to the respective local comparable rent (rent commitment).

The promotion for the benefit of households with special housing difficulties is modelled on the general social rental housing promotion. Therefore, only the special features of the promotion for households with special difficulties in housing provision are described here.

Erforderliche Unterlagen

You must enclose some documents with the application. Information on the required documents can be found on forms 9023 and 9027 on the L-Bank website.

- In order to receive funding for the construction/acquisition of new rented housing and for alterations/expansion measures to create rented housing, the applicant must make an own contribution in the form of equity capital.
