Volltext	You can receive compensation if you have suffered a loss of earnings as a result of quarantine/isolation or a ban on work. The activity ban or the obligation to quarantine/isolate must have been ordered by the public health department or another competent authority or result from a legal ordinance, e.g. Corona Ordinance on protective measures replacing isolation. Since 1 March 2023, there are no longer any compensable measures ordered by ordinance of the state government or the Ministry of Social Affairs in Baden-Württemberg. For periods from 1 March 2023 onwards, compensation can therefore only be applied for if the competent authority has personally ordered you to isolate or prohibit you from working and the other requirements of Section 56 IfSG are met. Note: It is of course still possible to submit applications for periods up to 1 March 2023. As before, an application deadline of two years applies here. Payment and application to the competent authority is made by the employer in the case of employees. Self-employed persons can submit their application directly to the competent authority.

Verfahrensablauf

As a rule, applications can only be submitted online.

Please note: Applications can only be submitted retrospectively<sup>**</sup>.<sup>**</sup>

The procedure varies depending on your employment status:

- For employees:
Employees receive compensation from their employers for the first six weeks. From the seventh week onwards, they must submit an application to the competent authority themselves in order to continue receiving compensation.

- For employers:
Employers can subsequently apply for reimbursement of the compensation paid to employees. They can submit applications for several employees together.

- For self-employed persons:
Self-employed persons can submit the application themselves.

After the authority has reviewed the claim, a
