Teaser
Volltext	From September 1, 2011, you will receive a residence permit in the form of a check card with additional electronic functions. Babies and children will also receive their own card. The eAT has a contactless chip inside the card. It stores • biometric features (photo, two fingerprints from the age of six), • ancillary provisions in connection with the residence permit (e.g. conditions) and • personal data. The following residence permits are issued as eATs: • Residence permit • Settlement permit • EU permanent residence permit • EU Blue Card
