Hinweise	For candidates with reading disabilities (LRS), the examination authority can set separate examination dates, during which the questions and answer options are read aloud to these candidates by a supervising person. Proof of the examinee's disability must be provided to the examination authority by a public health officer. If a candidate does not speak German, the examination authority may, in individual cases, call in an officially appointed interpreter at the applicant's expense (bilingual questionnaires are used for candidates who speak Russian). Persons from other federal states who intend to take part in a fishing license examination in M-V should consult the responsible fishing authority in their home country beforehand. As some federal states have different fishing regulations for participation in examinations and preparatory courses, it is not possible to obtain a fishing license in every federal state with an examination certificate from the state of M-V without further ado.
