Volltext	For the protection of road users, the legislator has stipulated that seat belts must be worn while driving and that protective helmets must be worn when driving motorcycles. However, within extremely narrow limits, it is possible to be exempted from this obligation upon application. The resulting considerable safety risk is borne by the applicant. You can be exempted from the obligation to wear a seat belt if • it is not possible to wear seat belts for health reasons • the body height is less than 150 cm. You can be exempted from the obligation to wear a helmet only if • it is not possible to wear a safety helmet for health reasons • the use of another means of transport is disproportionate. The exemption is revocable and usually granted for a
