Official license plates must have a stamped sticker from the registration authority. This does not apply to trailers that are not subject to registration and that have a repeater license plate. The design of license plates and their attachment to the vehicle are prescribed by law. All newly registered or re-registered vehicles receive a license plate with a Euro field. Previously issued license plates (without the Euro field) must also have the nationality plate "D" clearly visible on the vehicle when driving abroad.

As the owner, you must apply for the registration of your vehicle at the responsible registration authority. You can also appoint a representative with a written power of attorney. It is important that the power of attorney also includes your consent to the disclosure of vehicle tax-relevant data to the authorized representative.

In order to complete the procedure quickly, it is particularly important to submit all the necessary documents to the authority as completely as possible. You may also have to present the vehicle to the registration authority for an identity check. This is
