Teaser	If you have received a notice of admission as a late repatriate and are registered in Germany at your new place of residence, you will receive the certificate as a late repatriate and thus German citizenship.
Volltext	You are considered a late repatriate if you are of German descent and live in a state of the former Eastern Bloc or the successor states of the former Soviet Union. Your stay in Germany must be justified and approved by means of a special admission procedure. After entering the Federal Republic of Germany, you will first come to the Initial Reception Center Friedland of the Federal Office of Administration. There you and your family members will go through a registration and distribution procedure. You will receive a registration certificate confirming your participation in the procedure. You will then be assigned to a federal state to which you and your family will resettle. You will then receive a certificate from the Federal Office of Administration stating that you are a Spätaussiedler (ethnic German immigrant) or a relative. At the same time, this certificate gives you German citizenship and entitles you to benefits, for example, from the pension and statutory accident insurance, the Federal Employment Agency or the social welfare offices.

	immigrants (BVFG). • You have gone through the admission procedure for ethnic German repatriates. • After entering the Federal Republic of Germany, you have been assigned to a federal state and registered with the local residents' registration office.
Kosten	none
Verfahrensablauf	You do not have to apply for the certificate yourself, but will receive it automatically. • After you have completed the admission procedure in the initial reception facility of the Federal Administration Office in Friedland, the certification procedure is also initiated. • They are then assigned to a state. Their family ties, employment, employment and training opportunities are taken into account. • If you wish, you can make a name statement during the registration and distribution process (for example, to adapt your first and last name to the German language). • The late emigrant certificate will then be sent to your place of residence by post.
Bearbeitungsdauer	The procedure can take up to several weeks.
