Kurztext	• Insured persons are entitled to benefits in the event of sterilisation necessitated by illness. • The entitlement applies to both women and men. • Sterilisation necessitated by illness is deemed to have occurred if the treatment is necessary to protect personal health. This is the case, for example, for women for whom pregnancy would be harmful to their health and another form of contraception is not possible or not reliable. • On the other hand, there is no medical indication if, due to the health condition of one of the parents, an illness of the child would have to be feared in the event of pregnancy, since in this case sterilisation is not a curative but a prophylactic measure. • Sterilisations that are not due to illness and are to be carried out within the framework of individual life planning cannot be borne by the SHI.
