- It is sufficient if one parent has the described right of residence. It is irrelevant whether the child's parents are married.

Modul

Sachverhalt

- If the parents' residence permit expires, the child's residence permit can also be revoked.
- Children who have reached the age of 16 can, under certain conditions, receive a permanent right of residence in the form of a settlement permit (see administrative service "Issuing a settlement permit for underage children").
- The residence permit issued to a child becomes an independent right of residence, independent of family reunification, at the latest when the child reaches the age of majority.
- All information provided to the Immigration Office should be correct and complete to the best of your knowledge and belief so that your application can be processed without major delays.
- Incorrect or incomplete information can slow down the procedure and be detrimental to the person concerned. In serious cases, incorrect or incomplete information that is not completed or corrected in good time vis-à-vis the immigration authority can result in the revocation of residence rights that have already been granted, a fine, a prison sentence of up to three years or expulsion from the federal territory.
- Due to the complexity of residence law, this description is for information purposes only and is not legally binding.
