Teaser	You must provide proof of training in the security industry if you are employed and take on security tasks in the security industry on your own responsibility.
Volltext	The training takes place at the Chamber of Industry and Commerce and comprises at least 40 hours of instruction, during which you must be present without absences. Among other things, you will be taught your legal rights and obligations as a security guard as well as techniques for dealing with people in conflict situations. The course is taught in German, so you must have at least B1 level language skills. Following the training, you will have to answer written and oral comprehension questions on the content in order to receive the certificate. With the certificate, you will also be entered in the register of security guards. To open a security company or work in certain areas, such as refugee accommodation, nightclubs or other public places, you will need to take the more extensive security guard proficiency test. If you have a qualification in a relevant training occupation, for example as a specialist for protection and security, you do not need to provide additional proof of training.
