According to EU law, every food business operator must register its business or all business premises under its control with the locally competent food control authority. Food business operators at all stages of production, processing and trade are subject to this obligation. In addition to agricultural operations (primary production), this also includes restaurants, communal kitchens, snack bars, etc. Businesses that only marginally carry food in their product range, such as gas stations, pharmacies, drugstores and fitness studios, are also subject to registration. The term primary production covers the production, rearing and cultivation of plants and animals intended for use as food or feed. This also includes, among other things, harvesting as well as milking and keeping farm animals before slaughter. Food businesses are all businesses, regardless of whether they are profit-oriented or not and whether they are public or private. Thus, businesses that distribute food free of charge (e.g., food banks) or that engage in pure brokerage activities are also subject to registration. In addition, food business operators are obliged to notify the competent authority of all important changes, such as changes of address, the designation or address of business
