Sachverhalt

This program gives young people an insight into various occupational areas in order to identify their interests and skills.

Students who have not yet obtained the school-leaving certificate of Berufsreife can also obtain a school-leaving certificate equivalent to Berufsreife.

The BVJ is run as a full-time school and lasts one year or two years, depending on the prerequisites. Information on the BVJ in Mecklenburg-Western Pomerania can also be found on the Internet at https://www.bildung-mv.de/de/schule/berufliche_schulen/.

Voraussetzungen

Young people who are required to attend vocational training without a job or training relationship may be admitted to the one-year vocational preparation year, who are to be prepared for vocational training because of a lack of vocational maturity or a lack of a secondary school leaving certificate and who have previously reached at least the target of year 8 (transfer after year 9). In addition, young people who are obliged to attend vocational training without a job or training relationship can be admitted who have left a support school with the completion of the course of the general support school, with the vocational maturity or with an equivalent educational qualification.

The course of the two-year vocational preparation year is taken up by young people who are subject to full-time compulsory education and have left the general support school without a qualification after at least eight years of schooling. In addition, pupils from the regional school or comprehensive school who have not reached the objective of year 8 after at least eight years of school attendance can be admitted. In justified individual cases, additional pupils may be admitted in agreement with the competent school inspectorate.
