responsibility. The collection of purchase prices is a database and contains, among other things, information on contracts for the purchase and exchange of properties, parts of properties and rights to properties, including the associated price and value-determining features.

In order to maintain the collection of purchase prices, the expert committees receive property purchase and exchange contracts primarily from the certifying bodies (e.g. notaries) and evaluate them.

Among other things, comparative prices can be determined from the purchase price collection, which are used to determine comparative values in the comparative value procedure.

The collection of purchase prices is not intended for the public. You can obtain information from the purchase price collection on request if you can prove a legitimate interest.
