Sachverhalt

For foreign-language documents, the registry office generally requires complete translations into German, prepared by a translator who is publicly appointed and sworn in Germany. Foreign documents often also require certification by the competent foreign authority. In such a case, the registry office will draw your attention to this.

- Further documents: The registry office may require additional documents under certain circumstances, such as the naturalization certificate.

Voraussetzungen

Only persons of legal age can register a marriage. In addition, the spouses must be of marriageable age and legally competent. If the spouses do not speak the language, an interpreter must be brought along at the request of the spouses.

- Marriage between relatives in a straight line (for example, parents and their children) and between siblings and half-siblings is not permitted. This also applies in principle if the relationship was established by adoption.
- Multiple marriages are not permitted in Germany. A previously entered marriage must have been dissolved by death, divorce or other legally binding court decision before a new marriage is entered into.
- If a previous marriage was divorced abroad, the divorce must generally first be recognized in Germany in order for it to take effect here as well. Exceptions to this principle apply above all to most countries of the European Union (EU). A previously established civil partnership must also have been dissolved.

Kosten

The costs for registering the marriage and for the actual marriage depend on the individual case and may vary.

Verfahrensablauf

- To register your marriage, you and your partner should usually go together to the registry office of your place of residence. There you will receive all the necessary information.
- If one of you is unable to attend, the other can register the marriage alone. The registry office requires
