Sachverhalt

Full-time compulsory education lasts ten school years. There are exceptions to this (e.g., skipping a grade).

Full-time compulsory education can be completed at state schools (elementary school, regular school, community school, comprehensive school, grammar school and special school) as well as by attending an alternative school (so-called "free schools" or "private schools"). There are other options (e.g. at vocational schools).

If you or your children are in a training relationship, attendance at vocational school is compulsory (Berufsschulpflicht). Compulsory vocational school is fulfilled by attending vocational school or remedial vocational school. It ends with the completion of vocational training or at the latest at the end of the school year in which the 21st birthday is reached.
