You can also be represented at the registration office by another person by submitting the necessary documents (registration documents and power of attorney). • Family members and members of a civil partnership should use a registration form together if they move from a shared home to a new shared home on the same day; it is sufficient if one of the persons obliged to register makes the registration. • Newborns born in Germany only need to be registered if they are taken into a home other than that of the parents or mother. • If a carer or guardian has been appointed for an adult person who can determine their place of residence, they are responsible for registration. • Once you have registered, you will receive a confirmation of registration.

Electronic registration:

- First identify yourself in the online service via the BundID account using your identity card or eID card for (non-German) EU citizens. You will then be shown the data stored about you by the previous registration authority.

- The next step is to add the new address, the move-in and move-out dates and details of the landlord (and owner, if applicable) of your new home to this data and upload the landlord confirmation. You now have the option of checking the transfer blocks you have entered or setting up new transfer blocks.

- Finally, check your details again and send the registration to the new registration office.

- As a rule, you will receive the registration confirmation a few days later as a downloadable PDF. In the case of a random sample of addresses, a confirmation code is sent by post to the new address to verify the address. If this is the case, log in to the online service again and enter the confirmation code to complete the registration of your new home.

- Once you have completed the registration process, you will need to update your ID card and passport (if you have one) to include the new address or place of residence so that you can continue to use the eID function for electronic administrative services without any problems:

- If the online service offered by your municipality supports the change of ID documents, you can also do this directly online. After you have re-identified yourself with your ID card or eID card, the online service can save the new address on the chip of your ID card or eID card. In addition, you will receive an address/residence sticker by post, which you can affix to your ID card and passport (if applicable) according to the instructions provided.

- Alternatively, you can have these documents updated at any time at the citizens' office in your new municipality.

- Please note: If the electronic registration process is interrupted for technical reasons or the registration office cancels the electronic registration during the verification process, you will receive a notification. Please contact your new municipality in person to
