Teaser	If you want to control pests with poisons professionally, you may not just do it, but you must first inform the authorities who are responsible for this.
Volltext	You may only carry out commercial pest control if you have provided the competent authority with proof of your expertise, among other things. For example, a person who has passed the recognized examination for "Certified Pest Controller" or the examination for assistant pest controller or master pest controller is considered to be competent. The authority issues a certificate of competence for the respective activity. For this purpose, evidence must be provided that the personnel requirements for pest control are met.
