Volltext	German traffic law is made up of a large number of different laws. The most important traffic laws are the Road Traffic Act (StVG) and, building on this legal basis, the Road Traffic Regulations (StVO), the Road Traffic Licensing Regulations (StVZO), the Vehicle Registration Ordinance (FZV) and the Driving License Ordinance (FeV). Together they regulate the personal requirements for participation in road traffic, important rules of conduct, necessary vehicle standards and the transportation of persons and property on the various traffic routes. The particular objectives here are • Stabilization of the high level of road safety achieved, • Reduction of traffic accidents with serious personal injury, • Consistent focus on risk groups and main causes of accidents, • Strengthening specialized traffic monitoring. Traffic monitoring measures contribute to improving
