Teaser	As soon as you find a dead body or a person dies in your presence, you must inform the relatives or the police immediately.
Volltext	Every corpse must be buried. Any person who finds a corpse or in whose presence a person dies must immediately inform the relatives or the police. Any doctor in private practice who can be contacted is obliged to carry out the post-mortem examination without delay and to issue and hand over the death certificate. The same applies to doctors in hospitals and similar institutions for the deceased there. The person responsible must arrange the post-mortem examination without delay. Burial is generally possible at the earliest 48 hours after death. Corpses must be buried or cremated within 10 days of death. They can be buried in the ground or cremated. In Rhineland-Palatinate, a burial permit is required for the burial, which is issued by the local regulatory authority of the place of burial for a burial in
