Teaser	If no one takes care of the burial of a deceased person, the local regulatory authority usually arranges the burial at the expense of the person responsible for the burial.
Volltext	If a person dies who has no relatives (surviving dependants) to take care of the funeral and no one else feels responsible for taking care of the funeral, the local regulatory authority will arrange for the person to be buried.

If the death occurs at home, it is therefore particularly important to inform a doctor first, in addition to a funeral home. If the death occurred in a hospital or hospice, the relatives do not have to take care of issuing a death certificate, this is done by the respective facility. The death certificate is required in order to apply for a death certificate at the relevant registry office. duty of burial) or the police.

If there is no person responsible for burial or if such a person cannot be identified in time to fulfill the burial obligation or cannot be called upon for other reasons, the regulatory authority must arrange the burial by regulatory means as part of the prevention of danger.

Kosten

The costs required for a burial by the competent regulatory authority in order to remove the unlawful condition are to be interpreted more narrowly than the costs of a proper burial. In principle, an appropriate burial must be provided in a simple but dignified and customary form. If the person responsible for the funeral cannot reasonably be expected to bear the funeral costs, they may be entitled to have the necessary costs covered by the social welfare provider at the place of burial.

Verfahrensablauf

An official burial is only carried out if there are no relatives of the deceased person or if they cannot be found in a timely manner or if no one else is responsible for the burial.

If a relative or a person liable for burial can be identified, the authorities will issue a notice of burial to this person. If the person does not comply with this request, the authority will arrange the burial by way of substitute performance.

The costs incurred by the authority for the burial must be reimbursed by the person liable for burial. Section 9 of the Burial Act (BestG) specifies who is liable for burial.

The burial must always be carried out in accordance with the wishes of the deceased person; if these wishes are not known, a burial should be carried out in accordance with local custom.

Bearbeitungsdauer

Frist

The funeral must generally take place within ten days of the death. The burial period begins on the day of the event and specifies the time in which the burial must take place.

Kurztext
Ansprechpunkt	According to the provisions of the Police and Regulatory Authorities Act (POG), the general regulatory authority in whose district the interests to be protected are endangered or violated is responsible. If a burial is to be ordered by the public order authorities, this is the case where the corpse requiring burial is located at the time when the public order measure becomes necessary. As a rule, this is the place of death.
