Voraussetzungen

The recognition of your specialist qualification and the work as a specialist are only possible if you already have a valid licence to practice medicine in Germany. This means that you must first have applied for your qualification as a doctor at the competent authority and received your licence to practise medicine. After that, you can apply for recognition of your specialist qualification.

You must prove your German language skills when granting your licence to practise medicine/professional licence. As a rule, your German language skills will not be checked again for the recognition of a specialist, unless there are doubts about your ability to speak the language.
