Teaser	In the case of pupils who are severely impaired in their educational, development and learning opportunities, a procedure may be carried out to identify a need for special educational support.
Volltext	In principle, support is a basic principle of pedagogical action in all types of schools. It is the responsibility of all teachers to ensure age- and development-appropriate support. Special education support expands general support. In particular, it is intended to support pupils in the development and unfolding of their mental, emotional, physical and social abilities, their talents and inclinations by providing individual assistance. The task of special education support is to enable pupils to live, learn and act independently and together, taking into account their individual possibilities. The need for special educational support is to be assumed in pupils who are so severely impaired in their educational, development and learning opportunities that they cannot be adequately supported without special support. Special educational needs vary in severity and can be found in the following areas:

Physical and motor development</li> <li>7. Intellectual development</li> </ol> The standardised diagnostics in the special education assessment procedure are used to determine whether there is a need for special educational support in the above-mentioned special educational support priorities. As a matter of principle, the focus of special educational support is identified as a result of the assessment procedure and documented in the decision.
Erforderliche Unterlagen	The schools use mandatory forms for the implementation of the procedure, which are made available to the legal guardians during the procedure.
Voraussetzungen	If it can be assumed that the pupil is so severely impaired in the respective educational, development and learning opportunities that he/she cannot be adequately supported without special support.

Verfahrensablauf	The school management of the responsible school initiates the procedure to determine a need for special educational support if there are indications to that effect. A procedure is carried out when a special educational need is identified for the first time and when there are indications of a change or discontinuation of the need. A support report is prepared by a teacher from the responsible school and a special school teacher. The parents or guardians are advised by the teachers regarding the child's needs and their choice of school. At the request of the legal guardians, a funding committee is convened. The decision on the determination of a need for special educational support is made by the responsible Regional State Office for Schools and Education.
